THE SOLDIER'S SLEEP.

Deep is the slumber of the sleeping babe, Upon the undawned curtain of whose brain No phantoms flits; deep is the huntsman's dream; The sailor, in his giddy hammock slung, Rocked by the Ocean, revels in repose, The couch of kings may envy; and the star, The trembling star, that from the sunset springs, And bids the homeward wane its course retrace, The peasant for his honest toil rewards With rest that Chanticleer alone shall rouse; But sleeping babe, and huntsman with his dreams, The carcless sailor, and the wearied hind, Know not the trance of slumber that descends Upon the soldier's brain, when, like a ball In batt espent, or steed whose course is run, The sanguine struggle and the fierce suspense All past, and wearied by the hot pursuit, Whose scent is human blood, upon the sod His sabre and himself he wildly flings.—L'israeli. Deep is the slumber of the sleeping bab

ZIITO, THE SORCERER.

Very extraordinary things are related of Ziito, a sorcerer, in the court of Wenceslaus, king of Bohemia and afterwards emperor of Germany, in the latter part of the fourteenth century. This is perhaps, all things considered, the most wonderful specimen of magical power any where to be found. It is gravely recorded by Dubravius, bishop of Olmutz, in his history of Bohemia.—It was publicly exhibited on occasion of the marriage of Wenceslaus with Sophia, daughter of the elector Palatine of Bavaria, before a vast assembled multitude. The father-in-law of the king, well aware of the bridegroom's known predilection for theatrical exhibitions and magical illusions, brought with him to Prague.

tions and magical illusions, brought with him to Prague, establishment. the capital of Wenceslaus, a whole wagon-load of morrice-dancers and jugglers, who made their appearance among the royal retinue. Meanwhile Ziito, the favourite magician of the king, took his place obscurely among the ordinary spectators. He however immediately arrested the attention of the strangers, being remarked for his extraordinary deformity, and a mouth that stretched completely from ear to ear. Ziito was for some time engaged in quietly observing the tricks and sleights that were exhibited. At length, while the chief magician of the elector Palatine was still busily employed in showing some of the most admired specimens of his art, the Bohemian, indignant at what appeared to him the bung-ling exhibitions of his brother-artist, came forward, and reproached him with the unskilfulness of his performanees. The two professors presently fell into warm debate. Ziito, provoked at the insolence of his rival, made no more ado but swallowed him whole before the multitude, attired as he was, all but his shoes, which he objected to because they were dirty. He then retired for a short while to a closef, and presently returned, leading the magician along with him.

Having thus disposed of his rival, Zitto proceeded to exhibit the wonders of his art. He showed himselffirst in his proper shape, and then in those of different persons successively, with countenances and stature totally dissimilar to his own; at one time splendidly attired in robes of purple and silk, and then in a twinkling of an eye in coarse linen and a clownish coat of frieze. He tice would proceed along the field with a smooth and undulating motion without changing the posture of a limb' for all the world as if he were carried along in a ship. He would keep pace with the king's chariot, in a car drawn by barn-door fowls. He also amused the king's guests as they sat attable, by causing, when they stretched out their hands to the different dishes, sometimes their hands to turn into the cloven feet of an ox, and at other times into the hoofs of a horse. He would clap on them the antlers of a deer, so that, when they put their heads out at the window to see some sight that was going by, they could by no means draw them back again; while he in the mean time feasted away on the of thirty hogs, well fatted for the market. He drove these hogs to the residence of one Michael, a rich dealer, but who was remarked for being penurious and thrifty in his bargains. He offered them to Michael for whatever price he should judge reasonable. The bargain was presently struck, Ziito at the same time warnin the purchaser, that he should on no account drive them to the river to drink. Michael, however, paid no attention to this advice; and the hogs no sooner arrived at the river, than they turned into grains of corn as before. The dealer, greatly enraged at this trick, sought high and low for the seller, that he might be revenged on him.

At length he found him in a vinter's shop, seemingly in gloomy and absent frame of mind, reposing himself, with his legs stretched out on a form. The dealer called his now ready for the reception of visitors.—The situation of the place and the purity of the air, render it a most healthy and agreeable resort. He has spared no pains in the construction of the house, to make it convenient and pleasant to those who may favor him with their company. His table will be furnished in a satisfactory manner; fin and shell fish, of various descriptions, kept alive, and served up at short notice. His bar will be supplied to the general taste.—He dealer called him to the reception of visitors.—The beas will be furnished in a satisfactory manner; fin and pleasant to those who may favor him with their company. He can accommodate a few more boarders, if any wish this healthy resort, through the warm season.

The public are assured that his Stable will be furnished with the best of hay and grain. With strict attendance, and a disposition to please, he trusts to give satisfaction to all those who may favor him with patronage.

ed out to him, but he seemed not to hear. Finally he seized Ziito by one foot, plucking at it with all his might. The foot came away with the leg and thighand Ziito screamed out, apparently in great agony .--He seized Michael by the nape of the neck, and dragged him before a judge. Here the two set up their separate complaints, Michael for the fraud that had been committed on him, and Ziito for the irreparable injury he had suffered in his person. From this adventure came the proverb, frequently used in the days of the historian, speaking of any person who had made an improvident bargain. "He has made just such a purchase as Michael did with his hogs."

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1834.

New York City.-It would seem that the partizans the British Bank, the monied aristocracy of the city New York, are preparing to re-enact, at the coming ection, the scenes of violence which they played off st Spring. This course must be deprecated by every niend to the institutions of the country; but while the democrats deprecate all acts of violence, we trust that every man of them will prepare himself effectually to maintain his rights,-they should be prepared to act vigorously and in concert—they should neither commence violence, nor submit to it. The first assault which the Bank minions make upon their rights at the polls, should be punished in a summary and signal manner-not merely the poor ruffian who may have been hired to commit the act, but his employers should be chastised. Hold the satraps of the British Bank, and the tory agents of the British bankers responsible in their persons and property for any outrage upon the rights of suffrage and the public peace which their stipendiaries may commit The public authorities should see to the safety of the public arsenal and forts. There need be little said, but much done by the democrats, to preserve order-action. not words, is needed-their motto should be,-" WE NEITHER OFFER VIOLENCE, NOR WILL WE SUB-MIT TO IT." The democracy of the nation look to their brethren in New York to vindicate their principles.

A Bank paper of this city, which has been exercising all the influence it possesses to disturb the public peace, has had the effrontery to attribute a desire on the part of the democratic journals in New York to excite disorder. To show the perfect falsity of this charge, we copy the following from the New York Times, one of the leading democratic papers of that city :-"The resolution adopted at Masonic Hall, that the stores of the opposition merchants be closed during the three days of the election will probably be persevered in. We have hoped that the reflecting and peace loving members of the bank party would be convinced of the folly as well as danger of such a step, and that they would be willing to retrace it, but unless we are much mistaken our hopes are doomed to be disappointed. The bank presses seem determined that the merchants shall close their ears against all appeals either to their sense of justice, their regard for the free exercise of the right of suffrage, or their feelings as lovers of order and conservators in common with every good citizen of the peace of the city. The democratic presses which have warned them of the fearful dangers into which they are blindly hurrying are accused of appealing to the passions of the people, and of seeking to drive from the polls a respectable and intelligent class of our fellow citizens.— The charge is as foul as it is false. We have stated what we have reason to fear must be the necessary consequence of the adoption of the resolution proposed at Masonic Hall. If the worst consequences ensue, we will be guiltless, and they who are now seduced into the path of danger, by the arts of wicked leaders, will know on whose heads the guilt is to lie should the day of trouble come. We make no threats; we appeal to no man's pissions; but we do say in the spirit of sincerity and apart from all political considerations, that a step more dangerous to the peace of the city, more subversive of order, more likely to produce riot and bloodshed, and more utterly destructive of the exercise of the sacred elective franchise, has never been conceived. It is not too late to retrace this step. Earnestly we urge it upon the reflecting merchants to take this matter into their serious consideration. They have much at stake in this matter, and upon them will rest the guilt, should disorder and riot prevail

Betting .- The federalists of Maine, whose purses were rather longer than their heads, intend, we are told, to petition the Legislature of Maine for a law against betting upon elections. This is very proper, but we hope they will add a section for some of our Boston federalists, who made bets on the Maine election, that if a man do bet and lose, he shall not refuse to pay. We may, perhaps, yet have to chronicle the names of some of these worthies, if they don't face

The editor of the Courier is informed that the "advocates of Gen. Jackson," are anxious the "people should enjoy" all the rights and privileges secured to them by the government under which they live-but they are not willing that the hired mercenaries of a British Bank should defeat a fair expression of public opinion, by surrounding the polls in armed bands, threatening the safety and lives of those who refuse to worship at the shrine of their idolatry. Is the Courier answered?

Sacred Concert.-It will be seen hy a reference to our advertising columns, that Mr Allen has secured a glittering galaxy of talent for his Concert to-morrow evening at the Masonic Temple, upon which occasion several new and popular songs will be sung, for the first time in this city. Mr A. was disappointed, last Sunday evening, in obtaining the professional aid promised for the occasion, and was consequently obliged to dismiss a very numerous audience. He was subjected to a large pecuniary loss by the disappointment, which we hope will be fully made up to him to-morrow evening. The bill he offers should secure a large auditory.

"The wandering Piper was in Boston a few days since, but in consequence of ill health was unable to appear in public.'

The above paragraph has had an excellent run, but we must contradict it. The "Pipper" is not in Boston, but Portland, and is about to resume his tour through the Southern States.

'One of Many' is upon a subject in which our readers do not feel sufficient interest to justify us in occupying so large a portion of our columns with it.

Church Music .- That we have, within a few years, made considerable progress in musical science, is, perhaps, not to be disputed. We have now among us able this morning," is the perpetually annoying salutation and correct harmonists ; we have some good organists ; at the counting room of every newspaper in the cityand in many choirs, the execution is more correct and and nothing affords us more pleasure, except a new in better taste than was the case formerly. Yet, with subscriber, that planks the advance—than to see a all these advantages, I doubt whether the effect, the influence, and the power of music, particularly of sacred in favor of universal dissemination of intelligence, upon nusic, upon an audience or congregation, is equal to the sole condition of paying the printer. It appeared what it was many years ago. More admiration is per- from the testimony of Mr Watchman Pierce, that about haps excited by the ingenuity of musical contrivance or dawn yesterday morning, he perceived a trembling tipthe superiority of difficult execution; but the genuine pler strolling down State street, apparently in a very purpose of music, that of taking hold of the feelings and abstracted mood, till he came opposite a lawyer's office, of moving the soul, is, it appears to me, in some degree in the door of which the inviting title of the "Amerlost or defeated. The pleasure derived from the melody | ican Traveller," was conspicuously revealed. He haltand harmony now in fashion, seems to be that of the ed a moment, probably long enough to repeat to himhead-not that of the heart.

For the Boston Morning Post.

If the music of the church is to perform its true and of Rogersegitimate office, it must move the affections and sink into the soul. It must exalt and warm, or soften and melt into tenderness. It must not merely please the ear, or delight the musical critic; it must so affect the heart, that criticism will be forgotten and absorbed in a nobler and holier feeling.

I have some reason to doubt, whether this effect be produced to the same extent by church music now, that it formerly was, or that might be produced by it at this time, if a sound and pure judgment were followed, intead of the dictates of fashion, vanity, ambition, or love of gain. I recollect once to have read in the London Musical Magazine, some remarks by way of censure, with regard to the prevailing practice of musical teachers in London. It was stated that each teacher had his own book of instructions, and his own compositions, to which he confined his pupils, instead of those of the best masters, and the greatest composers. The principal object was to make money from the sale of his own productions; this ruling motive being mixed, perhaps, with a due portion of vanity and self-esteem. I fear this is too much the case with some of our teachers of sacred music, and our leaders of church choirs. 'The old tunes, the best of those composed by various writers, which have stood the test of time, which have become familiarized to the ear, and in a manner domesticated and endeared by long use, has been thrown aside, and their place is supplied by strangers. Music entirely new to us, most of it written here, and a great portion of it without character, and exceedingly common place, is heard every Sunday, producing any thing but devout feeling and serious effect. This, at least, appears to me to be the case. If, occasionally, a good tune formerly in vogue be introduced, the feelings are at once roused, and the change of effect is really sur- abandoned parent, that we not only determined to reprising.

I have been more particularly led to these remarks ply with his dutiful desire. at this time, by looking over a new compilation of church music, called the "Boston Collection of Psalm and Hymn Tunes." These tunes are principally of the old and familiar kind, to which I have alluded; and there are also between fifty and sixty by the old American composers-Billings, Holden, Read, Holyoke, Swan, and others, "with new and correct harmony," which were formerly in good repute, and in general use. But I have now special reference to a passage in the preface, a portion of which I shall here transcribe:-

"It is curious to remark (says the compiler) how few tunes of any one composer, however great, have ever effect of the coffee, which they had ascertained had become popular, or have long retained their popularity.

There are not, perhaps, more than three or four tunes, hours; and the life of Mr. B. was considered in great even of Handel, which are now in common use .-This circumstance serves to show, with sufficient clearing into our churches, with good effect, music, entirely new, to the general exclusion of that which is old and familiar. Let the new be ever so good, yet there is a peculiar effect which it cannot produce; that which and admired in our childhood, or in years long gone by. music, which the best new compositions fail to inspire. Schuyler, after an absence of an hour and three quar-It is not the fancy alone which is delighted; there is a pathos in it, which takes hold of the heart. 'Music is like the memory of days that are past, pleasant and mournful to the soul.' [Ossian.] If this beautiful sentiment be true, when applied to music in general, it dola, to the gratification of all present. The balloon is peculiarly so with regard to that which has been associated with our youth, and which never fails to revive, in the most vivid and impressive manner, the memory of those 'days that are past.' It is chiefly in reference to this common property of our nature, that the present collection is offered to the public. The First and Second Parts consist wholly of tunes, which are or have been popular and familiar among us, and most of which, it is confidently believed, will long continue to be acceptable to a large portion of every congregation in New

I am attached to the older church music-I do not mean Old Hundred, St. Martin's, Mear, and the like, the hands above they eyes so as to exclude the rays of but later and more airy tunes. I am loth that these the Sun, they could distinctly see the bodies of insects, should be exploded, and am desirous of their being reviv- apparently of a red or crimson color. They were in ed and again brought into use, principally at least, if not entirely. I hope the present rage for book-making they were moving in a direction from West to East, will subside, and that it will again become the fashion about 25 to 30 feet from the earth, and at least twenty to prefer those works which are the best, to those which are the newest.

I will merely add, that the compilation, to which I shall allude, consists wholly of Psalm and Hymn tunes, without Anthems, with the exception of one piece occupying only four pages. Room is thus given for a large number of tunes in a small compass and at low price. They are all easy, and in the most simple keys; those which are usually set with three or four sharps or flats, being transposed to less difficult keys. This circumstance, as well as the size and price, render the book well adapted to singing schools and the use of be- not be surprising if this bank wig "scourdrel" should ginners. The harmony throughout is stated to have find it a serious joke .- Albany Argus. been revised and corrected by one of the best harmonists in the country, and it is, I presume, wholly unexceptionable on that score. If it be a means of checking in childish pieces of folly that can be, and the occasion of any degree, the present rage, the prevailing mania, for and so far, at least, I wish it success.

Rev. Mr Taylor's Infant School .- Mr Brett, the liberal proprietor of Dubufe's celebrated painting of the Temptation of Adam and Eve, and the Expulsion from Paradise, has devoted the proceeds of their exhibition this day and Monday, to the benefit of the Infant School establishment by the Rev. Then suiting his action to his thoughts, he sprung the miscellaneous mine of the Traveller's "nest of hoarded sweets," and after satiating his mental appetite, he carefully folded it up, and headed for a threecent cellar, intending to make the paper minister to his bodily comfort also, by pawning it for his morning bitters. At this point, Pierce, as usual, vexatiously interrupted his progress, and committed him to jail. The case was fully made out, and no defence being set up, he was at once fined $1,00 and costs-amounting altogether to $4,48. As we have not spread the name and occupation of the poor pilferer before the public, our neighbors of the press may wish to know "why for," they are deprived of the privilege of punishing him through all the figures of editorial rhetoric, " and lashing the rascal naked through the world." We have a reason, however, which we presume will be both satisfactory to the corps, and creditable to our character for charity. It rarely happens, that a poor wretch, who is brought to the Police Court, is followed there by his next of kin-" troops of friends" generally cut his acquaintance, as instinctively as if he had been attacked with the Asiatic pestilence; it was therefore not without some surprise, that we saw continually by the side of the culprit, and weeping bitterly, a very decent young man, who, before the examination closed, came to us, and brushing away his tears, said, "Pray don't publish my father's name in the paper." This was a case certainly in which "the prayers of the wicked would avail nothing;" but we were so much moved with this rare instance of filial sorrow and shame on the part of the heart-broken youth, for the humiliating declension of his cord the honorable devotion of the son, but also to com-

Murder by Poison.-The Jacksonville Mississippian of September 5th, contains an account of one of the most revolting murders by poison that we ever heard of. The crime was committed upon the plantation of a Mr Briggs of Beatty's Bluff. It appears from disclosures made by some of those implicated it the murder, that the wench who cooked for Mr Briggs and his wife, procured the heads of a rattlesnake and scorpion, and caused them to be steeped in the coffee which she served at her master and mistress's breakfast. Mr and Mrs B. shortly after breakfast, were taken very sick, from the hours; and the life of Mr B was considered in great danger at the time our informant (says the Mississippiness, the difficulty if not the impossibility, of introduc- an) left that place; but we have not heard how it resulted. Two negro women and a negro man had been lodged in Benton jail charged with the crime.

> Extraordinary Phenomena.-Yesterday evening, Mr John Parker, Mr John Rogers, Mr Archibald Scott, and several other persons being at Three Mile House, observed something in the air, which they at first took to be mist or fog, but as the evening was clear, they were induced to take more notice of it, and by holding heets, with trains after them, resembling that of a comet, each sheet of these insects, appeared by itself, and yards in width, following each other in flocks like the pidgeons; they observed the passage of these insects for more than twenty minutes, the Sun at the time being more than one hour high .- Halifax Sco-

The vanity of young men, in loving fine cloths and new fashions, and valuing them, is one of the most great profuseness and undoing of young men. Avoid curiosity and too much expensiveness in your apparel; new church music, the publication will not be in vain, be comely, plain, decent, cleanly, not courteous nor costly; it is the sign of a weak head-piece to be sick for every new fashion, or to think himself the better in it, or the worse without it.

He left her, and she lashed her horse to go on; but the animal started out of his track, upset the chaise, and caused her by her fall to dislocate her hip-joint. A. W. cannot be at the expense to enumerate more cases, at present. He has not named cases of fevers, they are almost too ephemeral in the hands of a physician acquainted with his duty—the ignoramus or continued fever, is unknown in the practice of such. Delicacy will not not permit the naming of several diseases, which he has treated with universal success. In almost all the cases of diseases which have been treated by him, he has been under the necessity to expel not only the disease, but the poisons which produced and continued them—and all with innocent and hamless simples.

This practice induces him to believe he is not too bold in saying, the Thomsonian treatment removes both disease and the poisons af the Medical Faculty from the human system, when resorted to in seasonable time.

The uniform success which has attended the use of it where it has been extensively used, in Boston and various other parts of the United States, and in the West Indies, attested by disin terested and highly respectable persons, affords, next to a trial of the medicine itself, the best commentary upon its virtues, and the best recommendation which can be offered to those who are unacquainted with it.

Extract of a letter received from a gentleman in Boston, who had suffered severely from indigestion for three years. 'During this time, I suffered very much from mental depression, constant pain in the head and breast, and side, sharp shooting pains over almost the whole system—the food that I ate seemed to pass into my lungs and there remain, giving me great pain attended with a strong degree of heat. At times, I suffered so tended with a strong degree of heat. At times, I suffered so much from the pain of indigestion as to be confined to the bed for two or three days. During one of these most severe attacks, I was induced by the advice of a friend to try your Vegetable Medicine. In the course of a few weeks I found myself much better, and by the time I had taken two bottles, considered myself wholly free from the complaint. I continue, on the least feeling of any thing like indigestion or pressure on the stomach, to take about a table spoonful of it, which, in the course of a few hours, completely restores me. It has had with me a very wonderful effect, in strengthening the stomach and invigorating the whole system, and judging by my own case, I consider it in all diseases connected with the digestive organs. consider it in all diseases connected with the digestive organs,

Proof of which can be seen by those who will take the trouble to call at the Agent's Store and examine a Double Chest which has passed through a very severe fire, and preserved a valuable lot of books and papers, belonging to John S. Abbout, Esq., whose name is attached to the following certificate:

"This is to certify, that one of the above described Double Safes, which I purchased of the Messrs. S. A. & W. G. Pierce was in my office in this town when the office was burned on the 2d day of November last—the building was of two stories.

The Safe, weighing 700 lbs. fell from the second story into the ceilar, and was exposed to an intense heat for nearly three hours. It was for a long time literally red hot. It contained all the account books, notes, and court-papers, that were in my office; and no paper was in the least degree burnt or rendered illegible. JOHN S. ABBOTT.

The above Chest, and some of the papers which were in it at the time of the fire, are now at the Agents' store, corner of Essex and Washington streets, and any individual or corporation who are about purchasing Iron Safes for the protection of their books and papers, will find it for their advantage to call and examine them, and they will be perfectly satisfied that Gaylor's Double Safes are what they are represented to be—F1ZE PROOF! and they will be still further satisfied that none other but the Double Safes would stand a severe fire.

tirely from Vegetables.

More than forty years have now elapsed since the receipt was given me by my uncle, a celebrated Physician, at a time that I was troubled with a very bad cough and cold. After taking one dose, I found immediate relief, and a few doses cured me enirely; the effects were astonishing quick, and the numerous instances of the wonderful efficacy of these drops on different people, has induced me to put them up in Phials, with directions, under the impression it would be a public benefit. And as that is my sole aim—and to convince the public that is all, and as a sure guarantee against quackery and deception, I authorise my agents to return the money to all those that do not get relief by their returning the bottle and directions. The relief and absolute cure, particularly of these numerous and complicated disorders arising from neglected colds, is amply attested by the acknowledged approbation of those who are now restored to orders arising from neglected colds, is amply attested by the acknowledged approbation of those who are now restored to perfect health, as well as many in the decline of life who frankly acknowledge having received great relief from the use of them in the following diseases, viz:—Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Spitting of Blood, Hooping Cough, Difficulty of Breathing, Induenza, Quinsea, Phthisic, Croup, and all disorders arising from colds. Price 37½ cents per bottle.

The virtues of Bear's Oil have been too long tested to need any eulogium; and at this time no one can doubt of its being the very best article for strengthening and promoting the growth of the Hair. An honest prejudice against the use of Bear's Oil has long existed, arising from two causes—the improper method of purifying it, and the imposition upon the public of a spurious article. VILLIAM H. ROGERS, most respectfully invites the attention of Merchant Tailors and the public generally, to his new invented Imperial Stocks for the Neck, which for ease his new invented Imperial Stocks for the Neck, which for ease and elegance very far surpass every thing of the kind hitherto manufactured in this vicinity. They are cut scientifically; the materials and manner of making are quite different from those in common use, and they may be covered many times, and retain exactly the same shape as when first made. W. H. R. requests permission to enumerate the usual faults in the common Stocks, viz: 1st, the very inferior materials used; 2d, their sitting away from the chin and exposing the neck, when disagreeably close at the bottom; 3d, the edge at the top being uncomfortably tight, as to cause a distortion of the features by moving the head; 4th, that of their bulging out at the sides, by moving the head a little downwards, which has a most distaste fol appearance. By W. H. Rogers' deservedly admired and extensively patronized invention, all these faults are completely obviated. Naval and military gentlemen will find them the most pleasing and durable.
